From the beginning it was apparent to us that "FREIGHT TRAIN GRAFFITI" is really a story that had to be told by graffiti writers. In the past books focusing on graffiti have been written by onlookers. People who see a part of the culture and are so enthused with it that they see the need to preserve it. Otherwise they're written by one or two graffiti writers, which in many cases are only highlighting their respected perspective on the subject. Chip

This act of graffiti also generated over 500 positive news stories on the development of the new large locomotives. Let's go back to the current day freight train we were watching at the beginning of our story. As you view the graffiti on each car, some are more refined than others; possibly the works of experienced or more talented artists.

Once the train is built, CP says it will test the new electric traction motors to see if hydrogen technology is ready for the freight sector. CP's foray into hydrogen power comes as multiple industries are experimenting with the technology, while the government pushes its climate change targets through measures like a proposed carbon tax.
