Aristotle's zoological writings with their wealth of detailed investigations on diverse species of animals have fascinated medieval and Renaissance culture. This volume explores how these texts have been read in various traditions (Arabic, Hebrew, Latin), and how they have been incorporated in different genres (in philosophical and scientific treatises, in florilegia and encyclopedias, in theological symbolism, in moral allegories, and in manuscript illustrations). This multidisciplinary and multilinguistic approach highlights substantial aspects of Aristotle's animals.

Pinerolo, Italy. April 1945. At a fascist conference, a writer disappears and is found dead at the bottom of a cliff. Thirty years later, a young man—a political activist or maybe a terrorist—interviews the survivors to try to uncover the truth about what happened and its consequences. Who was this writer? What did he believe in? Why, shortly before his death, did he save a man who could have killed him? Where is his lost work? And what does any of this have to do with a teenager in contemporary Milan involved in a violent confrontation with the police? Bold and incisive, Don't Shed Your Tears for Anyone Who Lives on These Streets is a gripping examination of art-as-politics and politics-as-crime.

The author describes his twenty month ordeal in the Nazi death camp.

Paul realises he will never be able to marry Maria if he remains poor. When he wins the story competition, he believes his problems are over. Can he marry Maria now?

Jerome Bel's "Disabled Theater" polarizes the public: on the one hand celebrated as an outstanding conceptual dance piece, on the other hand harshly criticized for being a contemporary "freak show." In either case, the production raises central questions on the role of people with cognitive differences in Western society, as well as on basic norms and conventions of theater and dance: Can a theatrical stage serve as a place of emancipation for people with disabilities? To what extent are performers with disabilities able to challenge and subvert the rules of an economized society, above all its performance principle? What would the training of an actor or a dancer look like without an ideology of ability? Do we need new categories of aesthetic judgment? The book takes "Disabled Theater" by Jerome Bel and Theater Hora as a springboard to a broader transdisciplinary discussion on "theater and disability," to a debate at the intersections of politics and aesthetics, of inclusion and exclusion, of virtuosity and dilettantism, of identity and empowerment.
