The Wallcreeper by Nell Zink is supposedly about a (weird) couple who find a Wallcreeper in an accident which also causes the wife's miscarriage. The book is supposed to be about birding, eco-terrorism and the adulterous couple but frankly the sarcasm and snarky wit was lost on me and I got super bored and stopped reading.

Nell Zink - Wikipedia

The Wallcreeper is a brilliant and funny debut about love, fidelity, marriage, a bird-loving American couple and the complicated fight for doing good in the world. It was in 2013 that writer Claire Messud responded to an interviewer who suggested that her female protagonists were not likeable. Messud claimed that the question was sexist, that one should not expect women in fiction to be likeable.

Review of The Wallcreeper by Nell Zink - BookBrowse.com

It would seem that Nell Zink has taken up the call within a new genre, the environmental novel—or more accurately, the bird watching novel. Which novel, according to an interview with the author, she wrote to get Franzen's attention. The strategy worked: Franzen, duly impressed, acted as her agent for awhile.

The Wallcreeper by Nell Zink, Paperback | Barnes & Noble®

Zink's debut novel is a weird, funny, sad, and sharp story of growing up. Opening with a car accident in which young married couple Tiffany and Stephen hit a wallcreeper (a bird that Stephen, a fanatical birder, adopts as a pet and names Rudolf), causing Tiffany to miscarry, the bulk of the novel follows the couple's push-and-pull years in Europe.

The Wallcreeper on Apple Books

"Nell Zink's debut novel follows a downwardly mobile secretary from Philadelphia who marries an ambitious soon-to-be-expat pharmaceutical researcher in hopes that she will never work again. They end up in Germany, where it turns out that her new husband is tougher, sneakier, more sincere, more contradictory, and smarter than she is; she'd naturally thought it was impossible.
