Gregory E Pence Rowman & Littlefield, £9.95, pp 174 ISBN 0 8476 8782 1 The debate over human cloning (specifically, nuclear somatic transfer) has been dominated by the doom merchants who usually gather round the sites of major scientific breakthroughs. By making an ethical case against laws banning nuclear somatic transfers, Pence swims against the tide.

~~Who's Afraid of Human Cloning? | The BMJ~~

More than a technical look at human cloning, Pence's book delves deep into the psychological and social aspects of this groundbreaking genetic frontier. Pence deconstructs the argumnts against cloning for what they really are: social stigmas arising from the fear of the unknown, driven largely by religious idiocy and the hypnotic call of anti-science rhetoric.
